FOR THE ALUMNI OF SAINT JOSEPH'S COLLEGE

VOL. 19 — No. 5

Giese, '45, Featured In Catholic Newspaper

A prominent St. Joseph alumnus—Vincent J. Giese, '45—was featured recently in a national edition of the Catholic weekly newspaper, Our Sunday Visitor, published in Huntington, Ind.

The paper devoted a full page to biographical sketches of writers whose work appears regularly on the pages of Our Sunday Visitor. The following biography was written on Giese, a regular contributor:

"Vincent J. Giese is a native of Fort Wayne, Ind. He was born in that city 33 years ago.

"He studied on the undergraduate level at St. Joseph's College, Rensselaer, Ind.; graduate study in journalism at Marquette University, and graduate study in political science at the University of Notre Dame.

"Since 1949, Mr. Giese has been the editorial director of Fides Publishers. His latest book, "Patterns for Teen-agers," was published by Fides last November. His first book, "The Apostolic Itch," was published in 1954.

"He has been active in youth work for the past four years with the Young Christian Workers and the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. In the spring of 1956, he was appointed by Cardinal Stritch to represent the Archdiocese of Chicago on the Lay Committee of the National Center of the Confraternity.

"As a free lance writer, he has contributed to such Catholic magazines as America, Social Order, Today, Ave Maria, The Voice of St. Jude, Apostolate, Work, The Grail, The Torch, Jubilee, Worship and Information. He is editor of Apostolic Perspectives, a new quarterly published by Fides."

Giese lives at 746 E. 79th st., Chicago 19.

Raises Fund $2000

Two-thousand dollars was added at Christmas to the Schumacher Family Scholarship fund by Mr. Peter Schumacher, thus increasing the total now to $12,000. The income from the total is available for students selected by the Scholarship Committee.

The Schumacher family, which includes two SJC alumni—Paul, '42, who is also a member of the Board of Lay Trustees, and Clarence, '32—is in the construction business in Mishawaka, Ind.

Peter Schumacher, the son of another brother, Herman, is a junior this year at St. Joseph's.

Fr. Pedro Cantu, '33, Does 'Near Impossible' -- Builds Mexican Parish School With Raffle Funds

There is a little village down in Mexico called Villa de Garcia—what we would call a poor little town, to say the least. But despite its poverty there is a Catholic parish in the town, complete with a Catholic elementary and high school.

In Mexico, according to seasoned observers, this is an almost impossible accomplishment. But not quite. Not if you have a pastor who eats this type of challenge for breakfast.

Villa de Garcia has this type of pastor. He is Fr. and St. Joe Alumnus Pedro Garza Cantu, '33.

His old College friends know him as just Pedro. Recent reports have it that these friends can discover, with little difficulty, "the same Pedro who romped on the basketball floor, walked the 'penance walk,' wrote irregular verbs, and in general made himself a very active part of St. Joe life. "He is a bit heavier around the middle (like all of us), but he is straight and erect, hasn't a gray hair on his head, and still has that eye twinkling with mischief. He is naturally more mature, and manifests a deep sense of responsibility."

FR. PEDRO CANTU, '33

After leaving St. Joe, Father Pedro studied his philosophy and theology "underground" during the vicious Mexican persecution of the Church. When he was ordained in 1937, the rigors of the persecution had begun to relax and his was the first class to be ordained openly in the Cathedral.

He spent three years as an assistant in a parish church in Monterrey known as Purissima. He served as an assistant in another parish outside Monterrey for some years, and then was "loaned" to Tampico for seven years. A few years ago, he requested to return to Monterrey because of his mother's failing health. She died about a year ago.

It was after his return, three years ago, that he was put in charge of his first parish—Villa de Garcia, just outside Monterrey.

His first glance at the town convinced him of the dire need of Catholic education. It was here that he conceived the notion to attempt the impossible in Mexico—the building of a parochial school, elementary and high school. Obviously the funds for such an ambitious program could not possibly come from his poverty-stricken parishioners. So Father Pedro got another idea—a gigantic raffle. Today, after three years, the observer has no trouble concluding that when Father Pedro said gigantic, he meant nothing less. He did not mean giving away groceries.

Father Pedro maintains an office, with his staff, in the city of Monterrey, where he runs his raffle. He also maintains a huge display room, as large as that of our average automobile dealer, where all 520 prizes are on display. Here, too, he has a staff. Included in the 520 prizes are such items as 10 cars (five Fiats and five Crosleys), 10 Vespa motor scooters, bicycles, television sets, automatic washers and dryers, sewing machines—everything except the New York Yankees.

This is the second year for Father Pedro's lottery. Last year he realized a net profit equivalent to $8,000 in American money. This year he hopes to double that figure.

Consequently, his parish plant in Villa de Garcia, complete with elementary and high school, is almost finished and will be as the yearly raffle thrives. To evade Mexican law, the school is called Instituto Mexico, and the title of the building is in the name of a layman. The operation of the school is typically parochial, with the teaching done at the present time by five nuns and seven lay teachers.

To dispel curiosity about the accompanying picture of Father Pedro, shown in a suit and tie, it should be pointed out that priests in Mexico are not permitted to wear the Roman collar. Thus Father Pedro gives the appearance, even down to the brief case which he carries, of the average business man as he drives in from the parish to his office every day to supervise the operation in Monterrey.

But Father Pedro is not the "average" business man. For underneath that blue suit is a Priest of God who does the work of a Man—not just the average man—but the work of a Man of God.

And as Father Pedro has demonstrated, you don't have to wear the Roman collar for that.

Diocese Installs Bishop Pursley

The Most Rev. Leo A. Pursley, D.D., '21, became the sixth bishop of the 100-year old Diocese of Fort Wayne, Ind., Tuesday, Feb. 26. The 54-year old prelate, who has been auxiliary bishop for the past six years, succeeds the late Archbishop John Francis Noll.

The installation made Bishop Pursley the spiritual leader over nearly 125,000 Catholics in 14 counties. More than 2,000 persons, including an estimated 350 priests and 400 nuns, witnessed the ecclesiastical proceedings in the Cathedral.

Bishop Henry J. Grimmelman of Evansville delivered the sermon.

The installation of Bishop Pursley followed by one day the same ceremony for Bishop Andrew G. Grutka, who became the First Bishop of Gary. The Gary ceremonies saw the canonical erection of the new diocese, formerly part of the Fort Wayne See. Bishop Grutka, already termed "Bishop of the Steelworkers" by the press, will be the spiritual head of 130,000 Catholics in four Indiana counties.

Herber, '41, Writes New Mystery Thriller

A "new Herber Mystery" is on the bookshelves, entitled "The Almost Dead." The author is Bill Herber, '41, a Chicago advertising executive.

The publishers, J. B. Lippincott Co., describe Herber's latest mystery as "a sizzling fusion of international intrigue and dramatic suspense," in which "Paris begins to look like a football field as money and lives are booted back and forth in a cat-and-mouse game."

"The Communists have kidnapped the wife of an international financier, and an ex-Marine is the contact man in arranging her release. He soon finds himself involved with characters more weird and dangerous than he ever encountered as a war-hardened leatherneck."

This is Herber's second book. His first, also published by Lippincott in 1955, was entitled "Live Bait for Murder." In a review of that book the Chicago Tribune described Herber as "an agile writer with a flair for creating suspense and plausible solutions to the most preposterous situations seen outside television."

Semester Adds 8 New Alumni

The alumni ranks were bolstered recently when eight St. Joseph seniors completed their work for bachelor degrees during the first semester, which ended Jan. 26. They will receive their diplomas at the time of the regular June commencement.

John G. Carter (no photo available) will receive his B.A. degree in history. He lives with his wife at 521 E. Washington st., Rensselaer.

HUGH P. COWDIN, Editor

Hungarians Hired by SJC Talk of Uprising, Freedom

St. Joseph's College has come to the aid of four Hungarian refugees who have recently fled with thousands of their countrymen from their ravaged Budapest and immigrated to the United States.

Fr. Paul White, business manager of the College, went to Camp Kilmer Jan. 15 to look for perhaps six skilled workers who might fill openings at St. Joseph's. He returned the next day with the four Hungarians, all professional craftsmen. They are Joseph Kiss, 42, a tailor; Joseph Szecsi, 32, an electrician; Stephen Nagy, 32, a cabinetmaker; and Ladislaus Volgyesi, 41, a painter.

They have been at work on the campus since Jan. 18 and those in charge of them speak very highly of the quality of their work. All four are living in rooms in the power house. Three of the four speak German but none of them speak English, though they are making progress by studying in the evenings.

The quartet, brought to the United States in December under the sponsorship of the Catholic War Relief Service of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, are not reluctant to talk about the past. According to Kiss, the Russians have dossiers on escapees and what he says here would add little to the black marks already back of his name. They speak through Student Interpreter Oscar Nemeth, '60, of North Liberty, Ind.

Take Part in Revolution

Kiss, who did most of the speaking for the group, said that the revolution, although it failed to depose the Hungarian puppet regime, was "definitely worthwhile." Cabinet-maker Nagy added that it showed the Russians in their true roles as oppressors rather than "friends," and that it asserted the Hungarian love of freedom.

Kiss and Szecsi were captured by the Russians during the revolution, but both escaped and made the Austrian border. Kiss was involved in the Budapest street-fighting for the first four days of the revolt. He was captured with 150 others but managed to escape when the front ranks disobeyed a Russian order and were shot down. He said about 50 of the Hungarians were killed.

Szecsi, who has a wife and two children still in Hungary, made his escape because "it was Siberia or get out." He already had spent four of his 32 years in the Siberian coal mines on a diet of weed soup and an occasional piece of bread and he was unwilling to repeat the performance.

Nagy took part in the first day's demonstrations when University of Budapest students marched with 50,000 demonstrators on the parliament with a 14-point list of demands which they wanted to broadcast over Radio Budapest. The fight started when a ranking Hungarian officer was shot and "everyone was ready to go."

Russians Want "Out"

Kiss recalled that on his return through Russia after World War II, where he was in army service, Russian people along the route cried because they felt the Hungarians were "getting away" from Russian tyranny while they—the Russian people—had to stay behind.

Even after they arrived in America the four were not too certain that they would be able to stop fighting. It seems that

Remodeling Plan Makes Progress

Plans are in progress for the revision and expansion of the students' dining room and food service area in the cafeteria.

The project, which will cost some $90,000, will include the renovation of the old dishwashing room into a lobby with rest room facilities for men and women; the covering of all pipes; new flooring and furniture and wood paneling on the walls; and new lighting.

The dishwashing room became obsolete with the installation of a new dishwasher last summer.

Also included in the physical improvement of the College this year is a new landscaping program under the direction of Frs. Charles Rueve and Marcellus Dreiling. Trees and shrubbery are already being replaced along the campus driveways and arrangements are being made to beautify the land extending 100 yards south of Raleigh hall and 100 feet west of the adjacent road. These plans include a putting green south of Raleigh, 75 feet in diameter. The green should be ready for use next fall.

The primary purpose of the landscaping is to add color and natural beauty to the campus by using different varieties of trees and shrubs which bloom in different seasons. The College is now using its own nursery of trees and shrubs.

The landscaping program is part of a five-year remodeling plan on the campus begun last June. Also included for the immediate future are a campus lighting system for the roads and ventilation of Raleigh hall.

while they were awaiting jobs at Camp Kilmer, they absorbed a steady diet of Western movies. So when they got off the train in Rensselaer, they apprehensively kept an eye out for tomahawk-wielding Indians because "Indiana" to them had sounded very much like the word "Indian."

All four men want to become American citizens although if Hungary were to regain her freedom, Kiss said he might return. The other three agreed that they would visit their homeland but that they want to make their new lives in America.

Like Freedom Best

As far as this country is concerned, the refugees were particularly impressed with the number of U.S. automobiles and the fact that the average American can own one. In Hungary only doctors and officials own cars, and all others are state-owned. It takes years for the "common man" to gather enough money to buy a car, and then he might find that the government would refuse to issue him a license anyway.

They are highly impressed with the food; even the most powerful in Hungary, they said, do not eat as well as the average American.

And they have been intrigued by the game of basketball—so much so that in the third St. Joe game they attended, against Evansville, they were criticizing the referees' calls.

But most deeply of all are they impressed with the idea symbolized by their very act of simply being able to express their true feelings without risk of being shot. The personable, expressive Kiss delivered the message.

"Freedom is the most important thing," said the tailor, in a manner which sounded as if these words had never before been spoken. "The ability to express himself freely is, to us, an American's most precious commodity. Everyone here should be thankful to live in such a free land."

C.P.'s Plan Two Plays

The next presentation of the Columbian Players will be two one-act plays, "The Other Apostle" and "The Glittering Gate." One of the plays will represent the College in the annual Catholic Theatre Conference one-act play festival to be held at St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Ind., at the end of March.

"The Other Apostle" is based on an incident involving six Roman soldiers, the apostle Judas, and the part they played in Our Lord's Passion. The soldiers will be portrayed by Bernie Balas, senior from Gary, Ind.; Tom Alter, senior from Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Jack Cochran, junior from Gary; Leon Brady, freshman from Dodge City, Kan.; Bernie Rupp, freshman from Monroe, Mich.; and Frank Marousek, freshman from Berwyn, Ill. Jim Trotter, freshman from Chicago, will portray Judas.

Cast in "Glittering Gate," a comedy concerning two damned souls who try to reach Heaven, are Bill Schuler, junior from Cary, Ill., and Pat Lavery, sophomore from Chicago.

The diminutive Serge Jaroff (above), who stands less than five feet tall, and his original Don Cosack Chorus and Dancers, closed out the St. Joseph College Concert Series for the school year with a well-received performance Feb. 20. Jaroff and three other members of the 24-man Chorus, which crystallized in Bulgaria in 1922, were members of the original group. They have since received international acclaim. Their talents and antics ignited considerable enthusiasm among the full house in the College auditorium.

Fr. Kinney, '43, Named Principal

Fr. Francis L. Kinney, '43, has been named the first principal of the new Central Catholic high school in Lafayette, Ind. Father Kinney was assigned to the post by the Order of the Precious Blood, which will provide the teaching faculty for the school. Classes will open in September.

The new 35-year-old principal was born at Ironton, Ohio, where he attended St. Lawrence elementary school and St. Joseph's high school. He graduated summa cum laude from St. Joseph's College in 1943 and was ordained in 1947.

From 1947 to 1950 he was an instructor in English, social studies, and music, and assistant dean of students at Brunnerdale seminary, Canton, Ohio.

In 1951, Father Kinney obtained his M.A. degree in history and education at the Catholic University of America. He has also done graduate work at John Carroll University and Xavier University in Cincinnati.

Father Kinney is presently the principal of Precious Blood Community high school in Canton. He is the author of extensive published works in the field of social studies and the professional training of the teaching clergy.

Library Gets Grant

Father Charles Banet, librarian at St. Joseph's, has received a United States Steel Foundation grant of $200 for the purchase of the 1950 New York Times volume on microfilm. The award was all of his 20 points in the first half, the Pumas led by 12 at intermission. Fenker committed his fourth foul early in the second stanza and was forced to sit out most of the half.

DePauw caught fire and finally tied the score at 57-57 with 9:43 left. The lead changed nine times in the last nine minutes until DePauw led 76-73 with less than a minute left. Puma forward Bill Lewis pilfered the ball and went all the way for a lay-up. Fifteen seconds later Lewis repeated the performance to put St. Joe on top 77-76 with 23 seconds remaining. Lawlor's jump shot then pulled it out for DePauw.

Lewis, with his spectacular second-half play, tied Fenker for scoring honors with 20 points. Rogovich added 10. The sensational finish to the game was almost identical with the 1956 game at Greencastle when Rogovich gave the Pumas a one point win with a last second hook shot.

Lose to Great Lakes

Coach O'Connell's crew returned home on Feb. 12 and ran into former Northwestern All-American Frank Ehmman and his tall, talented mates from Great Lakes. Despite a height disadvantage of four inches per man, the Pumas had managed to stay in the game until it was tied at 81-all with less than two minutes left. But the rangy Bluejackets pulled away to cinch a 90-85 victory.

Four days later the St. Joe cagers gained a 74-69 revenge victory over Ball State. In the earlier contest with the Cardinals the Pumas blew a 17-point second half lead to lose. In this game a 13-point second half lead also melted away but Lewis and Jancich put them back in front with five minutes left and the Pumas were never headed. Rogovich, Banary, and Lewis led the offense with 25, 19, and 16 points respectively.

St. Joe concluded their home season by dumping arch-rival Valparaiso 66-59. It was the first time the Pumas had beaten Valpo in three years. It was also the final home game for five St. Joe seniors—Fenker, Banary, Jack made by the Foundation Grants committee of the Association of College and Reference Libraries.

The addition of the 1950 volume will complete St. Joseph's New York Times collection from the present back through 1948. Father Banet has instituted the policy of purchasing the current volume and one back volume of the New York Times each year and hopes to run the collection back to the pre-World War II period to provide a more complete newspaper record for research.

The cost of the 1950 microfilm volume is $220.

St. Joseph's College has announced its 1957 baseball schedule, comprised of five double-headers and 10 single contests.

The 20-game campaign begins at St. Joseph's April 6 with a doubleheader against Wabash, and winds up May 21 at DePauw. Twelve of the 20 games will be against Indiana Collegiate conference foes while the remaining eight will be non-conference competition.

The Pumas, under the new managership of Bob Shemky, will be trying to improve last year's ICC record of 3-4 and an 8-8 season mark. Shemky came to St. Joseph's last fall after compiling a six-year high school baseball record of 20-9.

Baseball practice is scheduled to begin in the fieldhouse Mar. 11.

Rogovich Paces Team

The Pumas were finally eliminated from contention for the ICC crown in the final outing at Evansville. The Aces hit 47 percent of their shots in the first half to race off to a 43-34 halftime lead. The Pumas were never able to come back and finished on the short end of the 86-72 final count.

Lewis with a 14 point average and Fenker with 11.7 were among the top 20 conference scorers. Fenker was second in conference rebounding with a 13.1 average while Lewis, with an 11.5 average, finished fourth.

Glee Club Sings Twice

St. Joe's Glee Club combined with the choral organizations of several other Indiana Catholic colleges to present the annual Indiana Catholic College Choral Festival at Marian College, Indianapolis, on Mar. 2.

Each college group appeared for about 12 minutes. The combined group presented Harvey Gaul's "Easter Miracle" and "Clementine," under the direction of St. Joseph's Fr. Lawrence Heiman. For the occasion, the St. Joe group presented two new additions to their repertoire, "Song of the Vagabond" and "Joshua fit de Battle ob Jericho."

The following day, Mar. 3, the Glee Club traveled to Chicago where they presented their fourth annual Thorne Hall concert. For this event, which was sponsored by the St. Joseph's Fathers Club, the Glee Club combined with the vocal groups from the Nursing Schools of St. Margaret's Hospital in Hammond, Ind., and St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Gary.
